

workplan

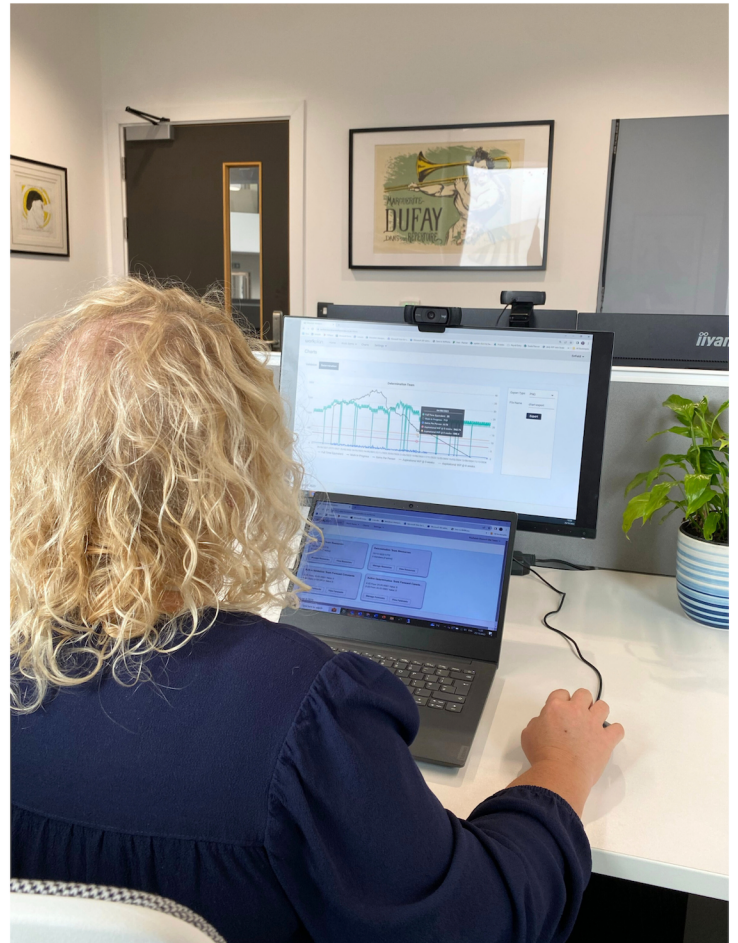

WorkPlan is a web-based work-in-progress and capacity trend and forecast tool for busy public service delivery teams. It successfully helps teams reduce backlogs and improve their performance against national measures.

Workplan offers a simple visualisation of how work-in-progress has been in the past, what it will look like in the future, and allows users to model the effect that process improvements and changes in capacity will have.

This helps teams balance their workload and capacity to reduce stress, improve wellbeing, and deliver a faster, better customer experience. It enables users to evidence the data story they know to be true for their service - adding credibility to the lived experiences of public servants and generating a convincing data picture that is easy to understand and present. And it helps teams reach data-driven solutions to deliver improved performance without additional resources.

WorkPlan is available now. Find out more by visiting our website or email talkwithus@mondrem.co.uk to arrange a demo.

WHY CHOOSE US

We are experienced public service consultants with expertise in the planning sector. We successfully help local authorities improve the wellbeing of planners, recruit and retain the planners they need, and improve productivity.

We understand the challenges local authorities face - including the need to deliver improved performance with fewer resources and create great workplaces where planners want to work and stay. Our work shows rewarding workplaces are productive, too. So, focussing on wellbeing, we help services clear their backlog, sustain manageable levels of work-in-progress, and deliver great outcomes for service users.
